GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

IN 1830

Fifty years after the Independent Republic of Vermont granted the Town of Groton in 1780 to Lt. Thomas Butterfield and associates, 134 families with 836 people were living here. Groton was essentially at its population average from then to the end of the 20th century. From 1830 to 2000 Groton's population has averaged 851, with a high of 1059 in 1900 and low of 631 in 1960.

Although the town was celebrating 50 years since its beginning, Groton Village was celebrating a new beginning. The selectmen, Peter McLachlin (McLaughlin) and David Vance made it official in 1831 by laying out and establishing the bounds of the Village .

The 3rd and final division of the town had been surveyed by 1821 (except for Harris Gore added in 1890) and the Proprietors records turned over to the Town Clerk. The town was up and running on its own by 1830, with at least 62 families coming and 31 families leaving in the previous decade, for a net gain of 31 families and 241 people. Although the population remained fairly steady after 1830, fluctuating less than 25%, many people came and went between each census.

Families living here in 1830 who had been here since the first census in 1790 were: Israel Bailey; Robards Darling; Aaron Hosmer Jr.; and Edmund Morse. John Darling and his wife, Phoebe, were living with their son, Moses' family until their deaths in 1830.

Eleven of the thirty new families in the 1800 census (37%) were still here: Samuel Darling; John Emery; Timothy Emery; Ephraim Gary; Dominicus Gray; Jacob Hatch; John Hill; James Hooper; Silas Lund; Enoch Manchester; and Robert Taisey.

William Frost died in 1821; Charles Emery died in 1823; Jonathan Welch died in 1828; Edmund Welch died in 1829; and in 1830 Betsey Morrison was living with her son, Timothy's family and Lydia Roberts was living with her son, Daniel's family.

Nineteen of the forty eight new families in the 1810 census (40%) were still here: Jacob Abbott; Timothy Bennett; Moses Darling; Moses Emerson; Caleb Emery; Ebenezer Fisk; John Heath; William Hodgdon; David Jenkins; Peter (McLachlin) McLaughlin; Enoch Page Jr.; Moses Page; Josiah Paul; Oliver Rhodes; William Stanley; David Vance; Hosea Welch; Stephen Welch; and Reuben Whitcher.

Thirty eight of the fifty eight new families in the 1820 census (66%) were still here: Nathaniel Cunningham; Daniel Darling; Medad Darling; Andrew Emery; Noah Emery; Isaiah Frost; Moses Frost; Benjamin Goodwin; Moses Hatch; Daniel Heath; Jacob Heath; James Heath; Stephen Hodgdon; Ira Lowe; Jeremiah Lund; William Lyle; Norris Marshall; Andrew McClary; Abraham Morrison;

Charles Morrison; John Page; Leverett Page; Moses Plummer; Samuel Plummer; Andrew Renfrew; John Rhodes; Joseph Ricker; James Taisey; John Taisey; William Vance; Forrest (Forris) Welch; Medad Welch; Rebe Welch; Job Welton; Foxwell Whitcher; Hiram Whitcher; Oze Wilmot; and Joseph Wormwood. Jonathan Darling died October 9, 1820.

Sixty two families were listed in 1830 for the first time.

Flavel Bailey (son of Rev. James and Mary (Bailey) Bailey) b. 1776 at Haverhill, NH and d. 1846 at Groton; m. 1808 Mary Chamberlain at Peacham and they came to Groton in the early 1820's settling on lot no. 40, located up the Red Brook from the Hosea Welch mill site. They had 5 children.

James Bailey (may be son of Israel?) was listed in 1830 with his wife, both 40-50, and 2 boys (20-30 and 15-20); and one girl under 5; one member of the family was listed as blind; family was not in 1840 census.

Thomas Bellamay (ancestry unknown) was listed with his wife, both 20-30, and a boy under 5 in 1830; they are not in 1840 census.

Polly Brown (ancestry unknown) was 20-30 and she had a boy and girl under 5 in 1830; not listed in 1840 census.

Moses Burnham (son of Abraham and Lydia (Bradley) Burnham) b. 1795 at Rumney, NH and d. 1861 at Groton; m. 1818 Virtue S. Hall and came to Groton in 1825 with his wife, two children, his mother and his nephew and apprentice, Isaac Newton Hall. He built the meeting house for the Methodist Society in 1836. Two other children died young.

John B. Chase (ancestry unknown) and his wife were 40-50 and they had 1 boy 10-15 and 2 girls 5-10 and 2 under 5 in 1830; not in 1840 census. Perhaps a son or relative of Moses Chase?

Orange S. Clark (ancestry unknown) b. 1790 and

(2) Martha Rhodes and they had 4 children; in 1833 he and his brother, Morris, purchased from Hosea Low lot 55, third division, with the sawmill at the foot of "Wells River Pond", now Lake Groton. He had more 'irons in the fire' than any other resident of Groton in his time; and was a pioneer of Groton Village; did more than any other to set the wheels of industry in motion.

Aaron Darling (son of Samuel and Catherine (Welch) Darling) b. 1805 and d. 1839 at Groton; m. 1826 Judith Jenkins and they had 4 daughters.

Jonathan Darling (brother of Aaron) b. in 1797 at Groton and d. in 1873 at Bangor, WI; m. about 1820 Mary Rhodes, divorcee of William Taisey who left her; Jonathan and Mary had 6 children.

Nathan Darling (brother of Aaron and Jonathan) b. 1807 and d. 1881 at Groton; m. 1829 Drucilla Jenkins and they had 8 children.

John Darling (son of Robards and Judith (Gile) Darling) b. 1789 and d. 1855 at Groton; m. 1829 Janette Brock and they had 10 children.

Nathan Darling (brother of John) b. 1808 at Groton and d. 1892 at Malone, NY; m. (1) 1829 Sarah Hooper and they had 8 children; (2) 1866 Eliza Darrah and they had 2 children; the family moved to Malone in 1836 where he continued his work as a cabinet maker and undertaker.

Parker Dodge (ancestry unknown) b. between 1770 and 1780; m. Mehitable Ricker and had a family of 7 in the 1830 census; not in 1840 census.

Samuel Emery (son of John and Sarah (Parker) Emery) b. in 1803 at Groton and d. in 1884 at Topsham, VT; m. 1824 Betsy Hooper and they had 5

WHY LEAVES TURN COLOR

According to legend, every autumn Jack Frost, with a palette of colors, paints the lush green leaves of summer a brilliant orange, yellow, red and purple.

Actually, frost has little to do with fall leaf color. The changing leaf color is a chemical process activated by the shorter days and cooler temperatures of fall. Jack Frost's color palette is empirically represented by chlorophyll for green, carotenoids and xanthophylls for yellows, and anthocyanin for purples and reds.

Abundant supplies of chlorophyll (the green pigment that all plants use to make sugar from sunlight) make leaves appear green during the growing season. In late summer and autumn, shorter days and cooler temperatures slow down a plant's life processes. Chlorophyll production slows, and soon the plant uses more chlorophyll than it can replace. As chlorophyll disappears, the more stable yellow pigments that were also present during the growing season are unmasked. Thus leaves "turn" yellow.

When autumn paints the town red, a different chemical process takes place. During bright, clear fall days, sugar accumulates in the leaves. Cooler night temperatures and a layer of blocking cells in the leaf stem limit the sugar flow out of the leaves. The abundant sugar in the leaf is converted to anthocyanin that produces a red to purplish color. The brilliance of the reds and purples depends on the amount of trapped sugars in the leaf. The particular shade of red or purple depends on the leaf's acidity.

Why do trees turn the color they do? Coded in their genes is the ability to produce the different color pigments. Birch and poplar, the glorious golds of autumn, produce large amounts of yellow pigments and little or no anthocyanin. Oaks and sumac, rich in autumn reds, produce mostly anthocyanin.

All trees of the same species may share a common green during the summer months, but just wait until autumn. Each tree has its own genetic code that makes some trees produce more brilliant color than others. That's also why some sugar maples appear scarlet, while others appear deeper gold.

GROTON VILLAGE - 1830

Daniel Munroe built a sawmill in 1799, about where Morrison Hall is now, and sold it to James Henderson who added a gristmill and the small settlement along the river became known as “Henderson’s Mills” until shortly before Groton Village was established. Medad Darling purchased land east of Henderson’s in 1816 and built a dam, carding mill, gristmill, and sawmill. In 1830, Moses Burnham owned Henderson’s mills and Samuel Clark owned Darling’s mills. Clark also built a fulling mill, a tannery, and acquired a “Potash establishment” from James Joslin near the Peter Paul House. Moses Weld manufactured axes near Clark’s gristmill and Moulton Heath built a blacksmith shop near Burnham’s mill. Samuel Randall built an Inn in 1827 that later became “Weeds Hotel” and eventually Goodine’s Variety Store. Ephraim Low purchased Joel Walker’s store built in 1822. Samuel Clark built a second store in 1831 and Morris Clark and John Cassett built the third village store in 1833.

GROTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY NEWS

The Peter Paul House, home of the Groton Historical Society, will be open all day on Saturday October 4, 2008 Fall Foliage Day in Groton.

Bank of America is partnering with the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to provide grants to small museums, libraries, and archives. Grants will help to preserve specific items, including works of art, artifacts and historical documents that are in need of conservation. In addition to conservation treatment, grants can be used for environmental improvements and improvements to collections storage. Applicants will build on completed conservation assessments of their collections, to ensure that the Bank of America/IMLS grants are used in accordance with best practices in the field, and underscore the importance of assessment planning.

Grants of up to $3,000 will be awarded and no match is required. For more information - including grant guidelines, visit: <http://www.ims.gov/collections/grants/boa.htm>

The 55th Annual League of Local Historical Societies Annual Meeting will be held in Belows Falls, on November 7th. The conference is for individuals from museums, historical societies, and other cultural institutions throughout the state. The theme is COMMUNITY, CONNECTIONS AND COLLECTIONS. Attendees will explore and share concepts of how cultural organizations solve problems, develop programs, and collaborate in building bridges to new communities and new resources. They will gain inspirational ideas and opportunities to take back to their own organizations. For more information send e-mail to Lisa.Evans@state.vt.us

The Groton Historical Society members and friends continue to send information and pictures of their families for the GHS Family Records.

Eric McGuire from California, a third great grandson of Silas Lund, who came to Groton in 1791, sent more information and pictures of the Silas Lund, Josiah Paul and Plummer families. He visited Groton in August and Harold Puffer helped him locate Groton cemeteries in an effort to find his ancestors graves.

Christie Hersey helped member Stephen Perry from Ohio find Groton cemeteries in an effort to locate burial sites of his ancestors.

Harold Sanders helped trace down a possible connection of his family to the Henry Lewis family in the 1830 census of Groton.

Betty Smallacombe sent 61 unidentified pictures from the Eastman family collection, in hopes that someone may be able to identify the people. She also sent about 40 pictures of members of the Eastman family that are identified and have been attached to their family records.

Dale Brown has designed a bridge to cross the Wells River on Tannery Brook Road as an alternate route around town in case of emergencies when William Scott highway is blocked by natural disasters or community events.

A new editor for the Groton Historical Society web site is needed to replace Jim Dresser who resigned when he moved to TN, but has continued as editor until a replacement is appointed. You can log on to the Town's web page on the internet at <http://www.grotonvt.com/> and click on the Historical Society link in the right sidebar to get the GHS web page (see p. 3).

The September meeting considered several projects for the society. One project to list "Historic Buildings" in town more than 100 years old was assigned to a committee of Deane Page, Dale Brown, and Janet and Harold Puffer. A software program for cataloging the GHS inventory was discussed, but no action was taken.

Dues are $10 for individuals and $15 for families. One family and two individuals have paid their dues for 2009. The year of record that you last paid your dues is shown after your name on the mailing label. Please notify the secretary of any errors.

ERATTUM

The Summer issue of the Newsletter reported that Nancy (Fisk) Darling was living with one of her children in 1830. No evidence of this can be found in the 1830 census. Perhaps she returned to ME with her three young children, all less than 10 in the 1820 census.
